

Mission Trip Preparation & Processing Guides

Since no two groups are alike, and no two trips (even within the same group!) are alike, we want to help you select learning activities that can take your team deeper.

Here are three reading resources that you can read to help prepare your team for their S.L.A.M. TRIP.

This book shows how by understanding the history and worldview perspectives of North America's host people, the church will discover some invaluable insights and needed Biblical principles for unity in the Body of Christ, and much-needed change in Western, missiological practices among Native American people.

This book seeks to build bridges, not walls. The North American Church and Native Americans need to be willing to cross over to each other's sides, and begin the process of healing, reconciling the past, making right the present, and planning for better days of ministry and growth in the future.

This book casts a biblical, multiethnic vision for people of every nation, tribe and tongue. It carefully unpacks how Christians should think about racial and cultural identity, demonstrating that ethnically diverse communities have always been God's intent for his people. Practical insights are given for how we can relate to one another with sensitivity, contextualize the gospel, combat the subtleties of racism and honor one another's unique contributions to church and society. Along the way, the author reckons with difficult challenges from our racially painful history and offers hope for healing and restoration.
